our vision

All women and girls are empowered to reach their potential within a safe and healthy environment.

our mission

To ensure that women's health care is delivered in a gender appropriate, affordable and accessible way to meet the health needs of women.

about us

Women's Health NSW is the peak body for 21 non-government community based women's health centres in New South Wales.

We promote a coordinated approach to policy and planning, staff professional development and consultation between member services, NSW Ministry of Health and other government and non-government agencies.

Members include 17 women's health centres providing multidisciplinary, primary health care focusing on wellness, prevention, early intervention, immediate and ongoing care including physical health/activity, chronic illness, emotional & mental health, reproductive and sexual health and the health effects of violence against women. Four special purpose services concentrate on culturally tailored programs for Aboriginal and Immigrant women and trauma specialised counselling. Throughout the network, service provision is influenced by the identified needs of local communities and the shared aim of improving the health of women, with a focus on women experiencing disadvantage.

Strategies incorporated by Women's Health Centres include preventative health care, community education and development, advocacy and empowerment; providing women with knowledge, skills and resources to enable them to take more responsibility over factors that may adversely affect their lives.

All centres work within the social model of health framework which acknowledges the physical, emotional and mental aspects of health as well as the broader social, cultural and economic factors that impact on women's wellbeing and ability to access services.

The Women's Health NSW website whnsw.asn.au outlines our structure, aim, history and philosophy along with project information and annual reporting. It also provides information on each Women's Health Centre in NSW outlining their range of services and contact information.

See page 15 for contact information for all Women's Health Centre's located in NSW.

our principles

Women's Health NSW works to the NSW Health CORE values of Collaboration, Openness, Respect and Empowerment which resonate with the WHNSW Principles of Women's Health Care (endorsed in 1982) highlighted below

- Social justice and an understanding of a gendered approach to health care and policy
- Health is determined by a broad range of social, environmental, economic and biological factors
- Differences in health status are linked to gender, age, socio-economic status, ethnicity, disability, location environment, gender inequality and discrimination
- Health promotion, disease prevention, equity of access to appropriate and affordable services and strengthening the primary health care system are necessary along with high quality illness treatment services
- Information, consultation, advocacy and community empowerment are important elements of the health process
- Dignity, privacy, informed consent, confidentiality and safety
- Informed decision making about health care requires accessible and appropriately targeted information for socio-economic and cultural groups
- Health care is both evidence-based and values women's own knowledge and experience
- Equity and accessibility
- Effective community management
- Links women's individual experience and health needs to the social and cultural context of women's lives
- Empowers women
- Challenges sex-role stereotyping, gender discrimination, racism and homophobia which affect health and well-being
- Increase the accessibility, sensitivity and acceptability of health services for women
- Relates to identified health priorities at the local and state level.

NSW Health CORE values

from the CEO

In 2015/16 WHNSW continued its collaborative work with NSW Ministry of Health (MOH) and NSW Health peak bodies as part of the MOH NGO Advisory Committee. Work focused on implementation of the Ministry's Partnerships for Health policy and the development of the new contract arrangements for non-government organisations. During the process we have worked with the women's health sector to identify capacity building opportunities, accreditation strategies, researching evidence based practice and program accountability and data.

In addition, WHNSW successfully organized three public events:

- 1 Billion Rising: an international mass action advocating for the end of violence against women. One in three or 1 billion women around the world will be raped or beaten at some time in their lives. In 2016 a demand for justice was the 1 billion rising theme. We joined 200 countries to demand the end to violence against women and children while distributing information and resources to communities.
- Galvanizing Equity in Health & Social Care Training: Strategies for inspiring new thinking on gender transformative and trauma-informed practices.
- What's Health Got to Do With It – Reflecting Gender and Women's Lives in Health Policy and Practice: to highlight the principles and research that inform and impact on women's health practice, research, partnerships and health outcomes.

Our work with the NSW Women's Alliance: Sexual Violence/ Domestic & Family Violence continues to be important. The NSW Women's Alliance brings together a range of agencies with a variety of expertise, knowledge and experience in responding to and working to prevent violence against women and to improve public policy and practice.

During the year we continued to manage our ongoing programs; Women's Health Statewide Meetings and Education Program (page 8) and the Women's Health NSW Database.

Once again, through the collation of sector service data, WHNSW is able to demonstrate the service provision and demographics of service users across the sector (see pages 9-11). Together women's health centres provided more than 133,000 occasions of service highlighted by the extensive service provision categories spanning more than 150 presenting health issues.

strategic priorities

Women's Health NSW will be proactive on priority issues relevant to women's health:

- 1 Advocating for improved outcomes for women
- 2 Networking and research
- 3 Reorienting the health system

Increase the capacity of the women's health sector to respond to women's health and wellbeing:

- 4 Good governance
- 5 Training and development
- 6 Women's health priority issues

... we have worked with the women's health sector to identify capacity building opportunities, accreditation strategies, researching evidence based practice and program accountability and data.

Work over the year has extended partnerships and improved policy, procedure and access to services for women and vulnerable communities across NSW. 2015/16 has been a productive year that has influenced the work ahead by identifying strategic directions that will make a difference.

We look forward to continuing partnerships, involvement in public policy and practice and a continued unpacking of gender inequity.

reducing violence against women

The work of the NGO women's health centres in violence prevention and service provision are an essential part of the NSW primary integrated health care system. From safety planning, medical services, specialist trauma counselling and therapeutic resilience work, legal and financial information, court support, grief and loss counselling, parenting skills, to name but a few current services. The women's health centres are a vital partner to enhance health, safety and well-being outcomes for women who have experienced violence.

'Violence against women in our community is an injustice that is everybody's concern. ...I want to see the entire community rally behind this issue.'

Elizabeth Broderick, Former Australian Sex Discrimination Commissioner

This graph includes service statistics from NSW Rape Crisis (NSWRC) representing 29% (7,166) of the category 'Adult Sexual Assault' (32.78%). Percentages change considerably when these figures are removed. Presenting Issue Violence/Abuse figures for Women's Health Centres (17 centres, 17,457 occasions of VAW) include: Adult Survivor Child Sexual Assault (12%); Adult Sexual Assault (5%); Domestic & Family Violence (68%)

strategic activities

Data and Evaluation Systems

Evaluating the social model of health in service delivery requires a comprehensive approach to statistical data collection. WHNSW developed the WHNSW Database using a Microsoft Access software program as an integrated client management and statistical collection system. The database enables women's health centres to collect consistent information on service delivery and demographics, which can be collated to form a state-wide picture.

Eighteen (18) Women's Health Centres use the WHNSW Women's Health Database. Other centres such as Waminda and Rape and Domestic Violence Services Australia use separate purpose-built databases to reflect their organisations' specific requirements.

During 2015/16, WHNSW and members centres continued an analysis of the WHNSW Database with a view to enhancing its capacity to present information on key performance indicators and outcomes.

For more information on the WHNSW Database see pages 9-11.

Evidence Based Practice

WHNSW Research officer Jacqueline Schroeder developed discussion papers and evidence libraries for

- Violence Against Women
- Women and Chronic Illnesses
- Sexual, Reproductive Health & Wellbeing

The process comprised three activities

1. Framework development aiming to separate women's health needs into four categories:

- 1.1 Structural Drivers – Law, policy and habitual procedures, cultural attitudes and beliefs
- 1.2 Social Determinants – Gender, age, socio-economic status, ethnicity, disability, location
- 1.3 Health Behaviours – Stress, poor nutrition and physical activity, smoking, poor health screening
- 1.4 Health Outcomes – Blood pressure, emotional and physical health, chronic disease, gender based violence

2. Scoping the evidence

3. Development of evidence libraries

The final papers are designed to support the women's health sector in articulating the evidence that supports the work we do for women utilising our services across NSW.
